Lists of all Significant Hindu Festivals Hindu festivals are dependent on the location and it varies even between the two adjacent cities. If we go by the local language, Fast is referred as Vrat and Festival is called by Tyohar. The majority of the hindu festivals are determined on the basis of planetary positions of the sun and the moon. Hence, according to the Hindu religion, festival or tyohar exemplifies the time of worshipping deities, celebrations and seeking the blessings of god. India is regarded as a land of fasts and festivals since the time immemorial. Our nation is well known for a lot of things right from yoga to the diverse travel destinations, but there exists one thing that our nation is best at; it's the celebration of festivals. India is a country with myriad cultural and religious backgrounds, and as a nation, it showcases the celebration of festivals of various types, colour and religion. This diverse culture makes the festivities and commemorations a pretty unique one to see and experience. It is the Indian culture that people are celebrating festivals and observing fasts right from the origin of human civilization. India being a secular country encompasses more than 4 religions and every single month comprises of one or more festivals to celebrate and enjoy. Even the traditions, rituals and celebrations for a festival varies with the change in place and region. Every single festival has its own legend and significance, and all the customs rests upon the reason behind the celebration of the festival. Though the process of the celebration of festival differs but the enthusiasm and the liveliness inside the people is the same when it comes to celebrations. Whether it is Dussehra, Diwali, Holi, Raksha Bandhan, Janmashtami, Gudi Padwa, Ugadi, Jagannath Yatra, or any other festival, AstroSage Hindu Calendar will make you aware of each and every festival so that you don't miss out a single opportunity in seeking the blessings of the Almighty.
